A dispatch from Washington to the Philadelphia Record says: Romance and crime, never more deftly or seductively blended of wartime guerilla fame, will not feel called upon to shoot at any more ex Russian Counts to shield his fair sister's name.

Mi-s Mosby has sent back handsome and suave young Miller's ongagement ring. She has likewise sent him a written request to call no more at the Mosby massion in War-renton, Va. See has read and studied and pondered over "Shoebox" Miller's published vindication, only to reach the sad conclusion that it does not vindicate him. There were too many missing links in his eighteencolumn story for her imagination to sup-ply. There were $1,000 bills in too great a profusion for a white-handed, tender palmed young man without known honorable avocation to have come into possession of, even if he had been entirely innocent of the Cat-fish bond robbery, as his alibi has aimed to prove.

Imagination, even though it were warped by affection for Miller, could not supply those missing links with any credit to him,

Had the man who escaped in a shoebox from the Riverside penitentiary at Pitts-burg made a different line of defence for himself he might have won not only charming Mies Mosby's heart and hand, but in good measure also the forgiveness of a world inclined, it is true, to judge convicted criminals with caution. Had he said to the woman he loved, as he has to many he said to the woman he loved, as he has to many a volunteer friend. "I was a robber, and one of the most skillful who ever cracked a safe on the Western Reserve, but I've seen the folly and crime of it, and am seeking reform and the forgiveness of mankind," he might have won that love which is the most devoted to men who have most to conquer. But a past as in nocent as the professed aims of the present reform was too great a claim to bear the scrutiny of a sweetheart. There was too much of Miller's vanuted innocence for even the hand of love to crowd into years filled so full of robbery and passions uncontrolled.

little moment henceforth to the Mosbys. Their path and his diverge any way.

Yet Mitkiewicz, the kaleidoscopic count, arrested in rochester, thrashed for lawlessness in Baltimore, and finally erecting a fabric of mimic Oriental royalty in his own Washington home, with which to fish for plain, homely, yet more or less rich American suckers, can go on, with or without his "Shoebox" partner. There are worldsjenough yet for both of them to conquer, without parting the proceeds between the two.

contained a report made to the French Academy of Medicine by Dr. Delthil, who said that the vapors of liquid tar and turpentine would dissoive the fibrinous exudations which choke up the throat in croup and diphtheria.
Dr. Delthii's process was described. He pours equal parts of turpentine and liquid tar into a tin pan or cup and sets fire to the mixture. A dense resinous smoke arises, ing and rattle stop; the patient falls into a sumber and seems to inhale the smoke with pleasure. The fibrinous membrane soon becomes detached, and the patient coughe up microbioides. These, when caught in a glass, may be seen to dissolve in the smoke. In the course of three days afterward the patient entirely recovers."

Dr. Nichols tried this treatment next day with little Ruth Lockwood. She was lying gasping for breath when he visited her. First pouring about two tablespoon-fuls of liquefied tar on an iron pan, he poured as much turpentine over it and set it on fire. The rich resinous smoke which rose to the ceiling was by no means unpleasant. As it filled the room the child's breathing became natural and as the smoke grew dense she fell asleep."—N. Y. Sun.

In July, 1889, I was called to see Mr. B. Found him confined to bed, suffering from a formidable constitutional disease. The bones of his face and nose were severely attacked. A portion of them had been removed. Sloughing ulcers had invaded many parts of his body. His former physicians considered him incuriable and had abandoned him. I prescribed A. B. C. Alterative. He soon began to improve and is now A. MONTEIRO, M. D.,
